Fishing trip is near tragedy

By BILL SHERROD

A Sunday afternoon fishing outing almost turned into disaster for Ernest Austin, a retired college professor who lives near Bent Creek in Appomattox County.

Austin, who suffers from severe emphysema and is highly susceptible to pnuemonia, became lost while making his way back from a fishing trip along David's Creek on Aug. 1.

See related letter, page 8

Soaking wet and exhausted, he realized sometime after dark that he would not be able to get out on his own until morning.

Austin and three friends, Dennis, Virginia and Michelle Williams, had begun fishing along David's Creek a tributary of the James River, about 3 p.m. that afternoon.

His friends returned to their car, parked near Route 60, about five p.m. Ernest continued down the creek.

"My problem was that I had really gotten into some fish," Austin notes. "I was concentrating on fishing, and not paying attention to where I was or to what time it was."

As light began to fade, he got out of the creek and began walking back upstream. But he took a wrong turn at a fork in the creek where a feeder stream entered David's Creek. The foliage around the creek and the limited light made it difficult to see the creek's fork as he was headed back to meet his friends.

Meanwhile, with darkness approaching, his friends became concerned when he failed to return to the car in the fading daylight.

"We started heading back down the creek looking for him a little after 6 p.m.," Virginia says.

As his friends searched the creek, Ernest went further and further from Route 60 and the parked car. Finally, as darkness settled in, he realized that he was lost.

"I thought about backtracking downstream, but it was dark and the rocks are very slippery. So I decided to leave the side of the creek and try to make my way through the woods to Route 60," Ernest recalls.

The woods were, very thick at that point, however, and Ernest had not gotten far before he realized that he would not be able to get out on his own in the dark. He decided to stop and build a fire, try to dry off and get warm, and wait until he could see his way through the woods in the morning.

By this time, Dennis Williams' brother Ed and a friend, Freddie Wells, had joined in the search for Ernest. They realized by about 9 p.m. that they would need help, and they contacted the Appomattox County Sheriff's Department.

Within a short period of time, a search party of about 25 persons had been formed and began to comb the woods in search of Ernest.

"I didn't panic, because I knew I was all right and could get out in the morning. But I was concernec because I was exhausted, wet and getting chilled," Ernest notes.

However, the people in the search party feared that Ernest was somewhere in the woods, injured, unconscious, or possibly even dead.

"Dennis and Ed were afraid that I had fallen and hit my head on a rock, and drowned," Ernest says. "They were wading the creek in the deep holes, looking for a body."

As Ernest hunkered over the small fire he had built trying to get warm, the search party methodically probed the woods, looking for some clue to his whereabouts.

Finally about 1:30 a.m., he saw a light and heard a voice call out to him, "Have you found him yet?"

"They saw the light from my fire, and thought I was one of the searchers," Ernest recalls. "I answered, 'No, but I'm the one you're looking for.'"

The group which found him -- Ron Steinkamp, Roy King, Ricky Baldwin, Donald Ballowe, Freddy Wells, Ed Williams and Dennis Williams, carried Ernest to a jeep, which then transported him to a waiting Glastone Rescue Squad unit. The rescue squad transported him to Lynchburg General Hospital, where he received a respiratory examination, inhalation therapy and an antibiotic.

Ernest Austin

In retrospect, Ernest says "I know I was very lucky. I could have had some real problems if I had had to spend the night out there in the woods, cold and wet. I have already had two lung operations for respiratory problems.

"I'm just thankful for the people in the s ch party," he adds. "Most of them didn't know me, they only knew that there was a person lost in the woods who needed help. It sort of dispels the notion that people today don't care about their fellow man."

AMS registration set

Any 7th or 8th grade student new to Appomattox County this year should come by Appomattox Middle School to register and choose subjects for the coming year if he or she has not already done so. A parent or guardian should accompany the student.

Registration is done in the guidance office (the green building next to the county library). Mrs. Bolling Carter, the Counselor, will work with parents and students in selection of subjects and in answering any other questions they may have. If you wish to talk to the counselor or to make an appointment, please call 352-2135.

Town Council to meet

The Appomattox Mayor and Council will meet Monday night (Aug. 16) at 7:30 p.m. at the town office on Linden Street.

The headline over a story in last week's Times-Virginian incorrectly identified the meeting date as August 9. We regret the error.

Citizens and interested persons having business with the Town Council are requested to attend the meeting Monday night.

50 years later.....

Class of 1932 remembers school days

With Mrs. Helene Welch Harvey, class sponsor, as honored guest, the Class of 1932 of Appomattox High School held a reunion on Saturday, July 24, 1982, to celebrate the 50th anniversary of its graduation.

Hosts for the covered dish supper were Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm A. Booker at their home, Beverly Hills Plantation, on the Appomattox - Buckingham County line near Gladstone. This beautiful country home, which has been in the family of Mr. Booker for nearly 250 years, was a perfect setting for the event.

In addition to the guest of honor, 14 of the surviving 25 members of the class, husbands, wives, and friends enjoyed the occasion. John Thornhill of Cleveland, Ohio traveled farthest to be present; other classmates came from Richmond, Portsmouth, Ark (Gloucester County), Christiansburg, Waynesboro, and Amherst. They were Malcolm Booker, Eloise O'Brien Burnett, Anne Martin Day, Ruby Wooldridge Hamilton, Ruth Morris Jennings, William R. Jobe, Mary Smith McDearmon, Hazel Moon, Hilda Moore, Claudine O'Brien, Catherine Lucado Perdue, Blass Ranson, Elizabeth Phelps Smith, and John Thonbill. Deceased members are Chapman Chilton, Lula Drinkard Gibson, William C. Hubbard, James C. Langran, Christine Paulette Moseley, Albert O'Brien and Clarkie Evans Ranson and Weselene Young Wooldridge.

Soon after 6:30 p.m., following a cordial welcome by the Booker's, the group assembled for supper with the Reverend Omar Burnett, husband of class member Eloise O'Brien Burnett, giving the invocation. Guests served themselves in the dining room from a great variety of attractive and delectable dishes, then returned to the patio to enjoy the good food while swapping stories of school days fifty and more years ago. Of special interest was an anniversary cake provided by the hosts and beautifully decorated in the colors of the class of 1932, with figures of a boy and girl graduate and the years 1932-1982.

Features of the program, presided over by Hilda Moore, vice-president, following supper, included calling of the class roll by Elizabeth Phelps Smith; a history of the class compiled and read by Claudine O'Brien; In Memoriam given by Hazel Moon; recollections elicited from each class member by Ruby Wooldridge Hamilton; singing of the class song, "Appomattox, Here We Are," composed by Alice Lee Smith Hunter; and special honors presented by John Thornhill.

Theme of the evening was the purple heart in honor of Mrs. Harvey, teacher and friend. Upon her arrival, a corsage, made by Mrs. Ouida O'Brien Persinger, was pinned upon the honoree. Then John Thornhill, on behalf of the class, awarded her the purple heart (purple being her favorite color) for her "bravery and battle scars" sustained in teaching English and French to the class. Also on behalf of the class, he presented Mrs. Harvey a collection of letters of appreciation, a scrapbook containing items of interest and pictures of class members, and a decorative plate with the picture of Appomattox High School as it was 1932. In responding, Mrs. Harvey said she was overwhelmed by such attention.

After several hours of enjoying good food, picture taking, reminiscing, and renewing old friendships, a very happy group of graduates of A.H.S. said good-bye's and rolled down U.S. 60 for home. The parting word was, "We should have a class reunion every year until only two of us are left."

Cooling off was easy

By Frances H. Paulette

Remember the Drug Store on the corner of Main and Church Streets in Downtown Appomattox? Sitting on a stool or in a booth enjoying an ice cream treat or maybe walking down the street licking an ice cream cone as you walked.....good way to spend a summer afternoon, wasn't it?

Did you know there was once an "Ice Cream Parlor" in Appomattox? If you do, then you're telling the world that you are definitely 'getting on' in years!

Mrs. Mary Moses Inge remembers the days of the 'Ice Cream Parlor' and doesn't mind saying so. She was born in 1897 and is proud of all the memories of Appomattox back then.

"It was around 1909 or 1910, I believe," said Mrs. Inge, "that Mr. and Mrs. Ran Tucker Fleshman opened the ice cream store."

At that time, the late Robert Irby had the Post Office in what is now known as the Lula Irby House, according to Mrs. Inge. Just down the road on the same side of the railroad tracks was a storage building, approximately 25 feet long and maybe 12 or 15 feet on width. Nothing fancy, mind you but the quality of the ice cream!

Mr. and Mrs. Fleshman made several flavors daily turning the freezers by hand.

"All you needed for a saucer of ice cream (there were no cones then(was a nickel. Of course you could get a ten cent dish but that was a lot of ice cream, and besides, a dime was a lot harder to get than a nickel,!!' laughed Mrs. Inge.

"The building was never finished but it was neat inside. There were homemade tables covered with oilcloth and there were curtains at the windows. Crude, but our own 'Ice Cream Parlor'

"The ice for making the cream had to be shipped in from Lynchburg or Farmville because back then we didn't have the ice plant here."

The ice came to Appomattox wrapped in a sack like material and packed in sawdust.

"I remember taking my brother, Hunter Moses by the hand and going down to the ice cream store. That was really the highlight of my week."

Mrs. Inge remembered other things about summers in Appomattox back in the early 1900'

"The circuses that came to Appomattox," smiled Mrs. Inge remembering, "were a special time for young and old alike. The circus posters would be displayed outside of the Ice Cream Parlor building advertising all the wonders coming to Appomattox."

"Everybody sat on the front porch at night to get cool. And, do you know, I don't really remember the houses being so hot. Everybody had blinds on the outside of the house and they were closed during the day to keep the heat out."

"I remember putting a small pan of cool water containing a wash cloth in the hand and going down beside my bed," remembered Mrs. Inge, "and during the night if I got too warm, I could wipe my face with the cool damp cloth."

"One of my friends told me she had often put a large pan of cool water underneath her bed to help cool the room during the night," laughed Mrs. Inge. "But I never tried that!"

AMS guided tours planned

The Appomattox Middle School counselor, Mrs. Boling Carter, with the cooperation of the SCA will offer guided tours of the school building to all incoming seventh grade students on Thursday, August 26 and Friday, August 27 from 8:30 a.m. until 5:00 p.m.

Both 7th and 8th grade students will be able to pick up their class schedules and homebase assignments in the school cafeteria on these two days. The counselor urges all students to come to the Middle School on one of these days in order to get their schedules and to see where their classes are held.

Students who are unable to get their schedules on these two days should report to the cafeteria upon arrival at school on Monday, August 30. Mrs. Carter will give these students homebase room numbers at that time.

Appomattox is enjoying the peak of the season in garden harvest. Fresh vegetables on most every table. And a lot of the harvest is being canned or placed in freezers. The Community Cannery seems especially busy. And, being a neighborly county, there is considerable sharing among friends. Thanks to those who have remembered me in this way. My modest garden, mostly flowers, has been a surprise, yeilding more than expected. Prize item has been The Magic Lily. Comes from a bulb planted in the fall and forgotten. Suddenly in early August a plant emerges, shoots up rapidly to about two feet high and is topped with a lovely pink blossom. Keeps well in a vase. Ah yes, there is a "magic" about Mother Nature to fascinate and reward

Thanks to Bro. Wm. Nichols, Pt. of Rocks, Md., for sending me a copy of a fine paper, The News, Frederick, Md. And to Mrs. Arthur Schooder (Frances Wright) for bringing by a collection of newspapers collected during recent travels. Mostly South Carolina and Delaware papers and, indeed I read them all.

First time in several years I do not have a cotton plant growing in my garden. Simply, I forgot to order the seed. .

All around town Crape Myrtle is in bloom.

Top event around the corner is the opening of school. One way or another, it concerns everyone. Frankly, I will be glad. On the wall in My Den is a faded picture of the first grade of the Holdcroft public school in Charles City County, long, long ago. The bundle of mischief missle of the front row is ME. Our brave teacher was Miss Ocie Trimmer. Say, how about everybody taking a picture or two of opening day of school, especially those just starting out.

A lone fly in the house can only mean trouble. Saturday I chased one all over the house. Swatter in hand, I chased the critter as he darted under chairs, behind pictures, walked on the ceiling, sailed from room to room. Finally, I gave up and flopped on a sofa. So what? Said fly challenged me. He landed and lingered not on me, but on the swatter! What to do? I did nothing whatsoever until the fly was lulled into drowsy relaxation after so much exercise. Then I left-handed him with a newspaper I had been reading and had beside me. New rule, strike one and you're out.

There is absolutely no truth in any report that I have been asked to manage the New York Yankees, I am a Yankee fan, but not a manager. Why not get Billy Martin back?

Manteo, N.C. will have a gala event in 1988, remembering the ill-fated Lost Colony in 1588, well before Jamestown.

Do not hear much about it, but there's lots of fishing going on in this area. Heard of one party catching 25 during one effort.

Thanks for reading and seeya around.

Coming up

Lions to meet

The Appomattox Lions Club will meet tonight (Thursday) at 6:45 .

Ron Steinkamp will be the guest speaker for the meeting. He will talk about the Boy Scout program in Appomattox County.

Bloodmobile visit

The Bloodmobile will be in Appomattox on Aug. 31, according to Alice Martin, chairman of Blood Services for Appomattox County.

"We want to call attention to the fact that the Bloodmobile will be held at the Memorial United Methodist Church this visit, from noon until 6 p.m.," said Mrs. Martin. The goal for this visit is 110 units of blood.

"The use of blood in hospitals is up by ten percent," said Mrs. Martin, "and we urge our regular donors to make plans to support this visit on the 31st and we encourage new donors to give a unit of blood."

Supervisors' meet

The Appomattox County Board of Supervisors will meet Friday at the Supervisor's room in the Clerk's office, starting at 9 a.m.

The Supervisors will hear regular monthly reports from heads of various county agencies and divisions.

201 holes of golf!

GARRY HOWARD, golf professional for Falling River Country Club and Steve Webster, former professional of Boonsboro Country Club, completed 201 holes of play on Friday, August 6. The golfing marathon began at 7 a.m. and continued until approximately 9 p.m. To help fight cancer was their concern and supporters of the marathon helped make this possible through pledges for each hole of play completed. On behalf of the Appomattox Cancer Society and the Golf Activity Committees of FRCC, we commend Garry and Steve for their personal efforts and contributions to the local cancer drive.
